Social Design: Making with a purpose / Daniel Charny

Daniel Charny is an internationally recognised creative director and lecturer in the field of contemporary design. Join Daniel for a practical look at social design and to get your creative juices flowing!

Daniel Charny is an internationally recognised curator, strategic consultant and lecturer in the field of contemporary design. Daniel has curated major shows for the Design Museum and the V&A.

Broken gears and no Ideas: Life as a materials engineer / Anna Ploszajski

Materials Engineering is all about looking at stuff and trying to understand what makes these materials hard, soft, fluffy, squidgy, heavy, elastic or tasty so we can start building things and solving problems.

Dr Anna Ploszajski is an award-winning materials engineer, science communicator and maker on a mission to get people fascinated by the ordinary stuff which makes up the world around us.

Resourcefulness and design / Pascal Anson

In this exciting two-part session, Pascal will explore and demonstrate the creativity and resourcefulness a designer needs when approaching any design situation. Students will then be involved in a collective creative exercise.

Designer Pascal Anson is Senior Lecturer at Kingston University and a visiting lecturer at the RCA. He runs a design consultancy and holds workshops in the UK and abroad.

A design for living / Wayne Hemingway

Wayne Hemingway will reflect on his fascinating and diverse journey from thrifty market staller to international and morally-responsible designer. Funny, inspirational and thought-provoking, this talk will show how self-belief and passion can be the keys to creative success.

Fashion designer, Wayne Hemingway MBE, set up Hemingway Design with his wife, Gerardine, after they sold Red or Dead. His design vision is to 'improve things that matter in life'.

What is a designer, and is there a process? / Bibi Nelson

After studying Design, Bibi has suspended 1000 LEDs above an Aston Martin, manufactured over 5000 litres of paint and spent 32 hours watching bedbugs. She'll explain how these are related and ask you to decide whether she's a designer.

Bibi Nelson is COO and co-founder of Bare Conductive, a London-based design and technology company inventing radically new ways to interact with and place electronics in our environments.
